

A Family Seminar, Presented by:
NYU Cardiovascular Genetics Program and the SADS Foundation

How Genetics, Technology and New Therapies are Reshaping Care for Inherited Arrhythmias

- When: Saturday, November 23rd, 2013
9:00AM – 4:00 PM (registration and refreshments at 8:15 AM)
- Who: SADS Families (Including diagnosed & undiagnosed children over 9 years old and teens), Referring Physicians, and Healthcare Professionals
- Where: NYU Langone Medical Center, 550 First Avenue, New York, NY 10016
- Room: Smilow Research Building, First Floor
- Cost: This seminar is free of charge, but advance registration can be found at: www.stopsads.org/nyufamilyseminar or e-mail Anne@sads.org

- NYULMC Cardiac and Vascular Institute Physician Lectures
 - Glenn Fishman, MD; Director, Division of Cardiology
 - Silvia Priori, MD, PhD; Director, Cardiovascular Genetics Program
 - Steven Fowler, MD; Assistant Professor of Medicine, Cardiac Electrophysiology and Genetics Program
 - Marina Cerrone, MD; Senior Research Scientist, Cardiovascular Genetics Program
- Physician Discussions and Question and Answer Session
 - Silvia Priori, MD, PhD; Glenn Fishman, MD; Steven Fowler, MD; Marina Cerrone, MD
- Lunch and Patient Presentations
 - Patients tell their stories about living with a Cardiac Channelopathy
- Coping with Heart Rhythm Disorders
 - “The Mindful Heart: The Use of Meditation with Heart Rhythm Disorders”
Jennifer Cory, MS, LCSW, Red Bank Psychotherapy Assoc.
- Exhibits, and CPR Certification Class
 - CPR Certification Class (requires advanced registration and a nominal fee)

Hope to see you there!